don't pull the lever!

Hi Leah! How are you? I hope you are doing well. I have been experiencing a whole lot of dread about climate change and the American culture of consumption. It's been making it hard to do smaller things, like the dishes. Do you have any tips about how to stop thinking about these things in order to live a more comfortable extractive life?

first of all: please do the dishes, if you don't, bugs will come and that's gross! second, while climate change is indeed dreadful and often soul-crushing, there are things you can do to fight back! personally, the more action i take to fight it, the less anxious about it i feel. some things you can do are: use fewer disposable plastic products, drive less, eat less meat, donate to organizations fighting climate change, and call your senators!

how is ktru going to cater towards mercury going into retrograde on october 31?
all communications will cease.

we will be playing robo exclusively. robo will only play the seinfeld theme. this is the only way to avoid disaster

i want to start a band, but i don't know how to play any instruments and i'm bad at singing. what to do???
learn to play an instrument!
(i hear the trombone is pretty easy.)
make music on your computer! sing anyway
-- there are great bands out there with bad singers! music is really fun, you'll find your voice if you just go out and do your best and make some :)

halloweenshow:

three artists will perform. read
about them here.

Kenner Wells

In his own words--"I am a simple man, I write songs." Max McGehee, aka Kenner Wells, is a rap & hip-hop artist from Houston. He's recently released a single, "Famous," and has also been featured on local artist Attxla's recent album. He has also produced for and performed with MadGenius. He'll be performing his dynamic set first at Halloween Show so make sure to come on out!

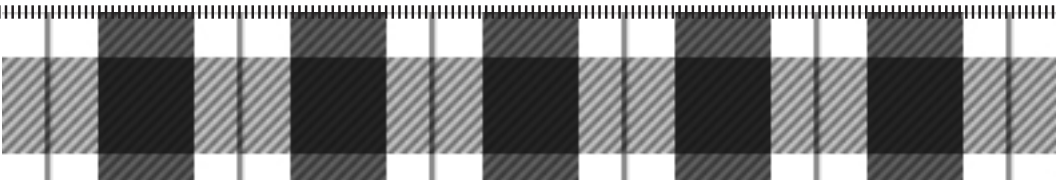

Goodgirl

"GOODGIRL is music from Houston. Something simultaneously beautiful and off-putting. Listen to "POOR HABITS"

Wax Dream

Sometimes with a furious and frenetic intensity, and other times a bittersweet feeling like longing for something just out of reach, Wax Dream has been blending sounds of Garage Rock and Psychedelia with notes of Punk, Glam Rock, and Jam Band influences. Recently having migrated to Austin, Texas, they have been cracking skulls, unpeeling brains, and pouring themselves in from venues large and small, dive bars, house parties, and empty warehouses all across Texas for the past two years. Comprised of Nick Dow and Quinn Decker (Guitars and Vocals), Connor Mitchell (Bass), and Chris Collier (Drums), the group has released three singles since their debut EP in Spring of 2018. Their second EP "II," released Sept 20, 2019 is available on vinyl on a split LP with San Marcos friends, Moon Dunes.

hania is our head of graphics and merch!

What's your role in KTRU?

Currently, Graphics + Merch. But before that, >.>

Where are you from?
Houston but also Las Vegas. It's a little complicated.

How are you feeling?
I just read the short story "Guts" and my tummy is hurting. :(<https://chuckpalahniuk.net/features/shorts/guts>

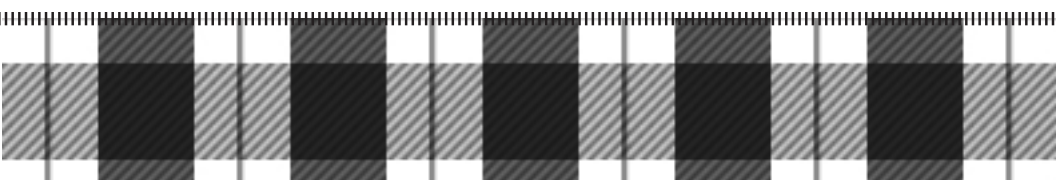

how'd you get involved with KTRU?

Freshman year i kept asking my advisors how to join or how to find it. They were, not at all helpful so I just had to wait for the activity fair. Then as a freshman i was like, the only person who showed up to one of the socials, aside from the station manager at the time (Lee!). He was the one who told me I should get more involved, and I'm really glad he did! Otherwise i would have been way too scared to do or say anything.

What are your interests/hobbies/dreams/fears/etc? Lets get into it

I write a lot. It's not necessarily good, which is irritating because I care about it a lot. But I've also heard that people who make things are never happy with what they make. Which just seems to portend a lifetime of frustration and self-loathing. It might explain a few things.

What are you listening to now?

Hmmm I'm really into Bambara, and I'm somehow just getting into Ovlov, which is kind of wack. I'm so late to that train. And of course the shoegaze act Weed, who I've been losing myself in since high school. In short, some echoey things, some eerie things. And because it's spooky season, "Haunted" by Fruit Juice.

What is your spirit muffin?

I don't know how capable I am of self-reflection, so something like that is a bit out of range for what i can answer. But the muffin i resonate with the most...

I feel like it would actually be a cupcake.

horoscopes:

tldr: RETROGRADES

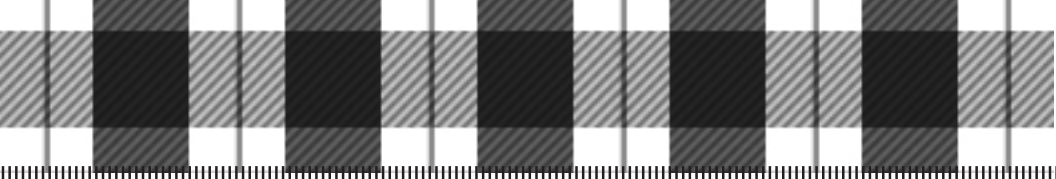

libra : Curiosity killed the cat. Actually, where have all of the neighbor's cats been disappearing to lately? Better lock your doors, lest the cats are only practice.

scorpio : It may be time to think about looking for a new apartment. I'm sure you like your current apartment just fine, but the pest control provision in your lease is not going to cover the strange creeping eldritch entities infesting your utility closet.

sagittarius : There is absolutely an axe murderer behind your shower curtain. He doesn't want to kill you, though. He's just out of shampoo and wants to use a little of yours. You won't even notice it's gone.

capricorn : You lie awake at night thinking of a way to tell your upstairs neighbors that their noise level is making it difficult to sleep lately. Perhaps belatedly, you realize that you live in a one-story house.

aquarius : It is unwise to judge others for being awkward and shy. Remember: no one plans a murder out loud.

pisces : Sure, everyone may act all excited about All Hallows' Eve, but the minute you summon a few spirits and wake the sleeping dead you're a "necromancer" and "ruining the party again."

aries : After improperly translating an incantation, you find that you have accidentally summoned Santa Claus. If you had paid better attention in introductory Latin, maybe this Christmas wouldn't have to be so awkward.

taurus : Your Halloween costume party is ruined when your weird neighbor shows up in a homemade version of Rihanna's CFDA Swarovski dress made only from saran wrap and stick-on rhinestones.

gemini : You consider that you need to make an effort to be more outgoing when the highlight of your Halloween is your friend texting you the word, "Boo."

cancer : Remember to drink lots of milk. The Skeleton War is coming.

leo : Statistically speaking, you are almost always within a 3-foot radius of at least one spider. Look around. If you don't see a spider, that's because it's already on you.

virgo : Invest in a waterproof mascara that won't smear when you are dragged to your doom by the ghost that lives in the bathroom on the first floor of your dorm.
